Desert Research Institute Libraries Donation Policy

The library welcomes the donations of publications of interest to DRI. However, space is severely limited, so the material donated will be carefully reviewed and determined if it should be added to the collection. If the documents are added to the collection, the material will be cataloged, integrated into the collection and available to the scientists and the community. If the documents are not added to the collection, the donor will be contacted and it will be held for 10 days for the donor to pick-up. If the donor does not pick-up the material within 10 days, it may be discarded or donated to another library.
